

An abstract painting with a palette knife or impasto technique. The composition includes a large, textured blue area in the upper left, a vertical orange-red shape on the left edge, and a yellow shape on the right edge. The center features a dark, textured cluster of colors (black, brown, yellow, red) surrounded by a lighter blue. The bottom is dominated by a thick, textured red layer, with patches of yellow, green, and blue visible. The overall style is expressive and layered.

This Christopher Cutts Gallery is proud to present Alexander Rasmussen's "Better Days Are Comin'." This vibrant new series of abstracts was presented in part at Art Miami 2023, and the remaining pieces are now being exhibited for the first time. "Better Days Are Comin'" will be on display from January 20 – February 8, 2024.

In the exhibition catalogue essay, Gary Michael Dault describes the series as "pure painting." "[Alexander Rasmussen's paintings] feel somehow engineered towards visual agitation and excitement; Rasmussen builds up his effects, as if he both knew what he wanted from them and how to get them."

"The Rasmussens I enjoy the most are the ones that knock you over with their rugged insouciance, their painterly cheek – and that, happily, includes most of his production. Rasmussen strikes me as a very deliberate painter, an artist who works very hard to coerce his paintings into the joie de vivre he clearly expects them to provide."

The exhibition is dedicated to the artist's father, Richard Lloyd Rasmussen, who was closely involved in his practice. The show's title, "Better Days Are Comin'," was a phrase he would often use.
